'Marvels of Oriental Thought and Splendour'

A gorgeous Indian Temple filled with priceless treasures, under a limpid sky. "Although I place but little faith in the fortune telling school of palmistry, I contend that the hand reflects the character and inclinations of the owner. If the big employer would attempt to choose his staff scientifically, the formation of the hand would be among the first matters considered and greater efficiency would result."

Ethel Watts Mumford, the well-known writer, has arrived at this conclusion after making a special study of the human hand on this continent. Last year she took a trip around the world on the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of France" with the intention of learning how palmistry was practised in the Orient.

In India, Mrs. Mumford found the temples of unparalleled beauty of architecture; palaces of nobles which, for lavish splendour and extravagant expenditure are unequalled in the annals of the West; dream edifices of sheer white built on the banks of placid lakes.

In all the temples of the Orient, astrology was established and recognized as the ancient and honorable

The S.S. "Empress of France," which made the round-the-world cruise last year, the "Empress of Scotland" is making the cruise this coming winter.

Mumford read the palm of a summary. The hand appeared highly refined with lines indicating considerable culture and intelligence. As long as the hand is intact, the lines remain even after death.

This year hundreds of tourists will leave New York on December 3, bound for strange lands on board the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Scotland." Many will learn the thrill of having their hearts read by the Blind Chinaman; see for themselves the works of a past civilization in many respects far greater than the present; marvel at the deep, far-reaching philosophy of the Orient seeking expression in the symbolic architecture of the homes of priests and princes.

In a Cairo museum in Egypt, Mrs.

ly fond of stewards' work on American vessels.

Whenever a man wearing a collar entered the room, it was immediately supposed by all present that he was a chief steward looking for assistants, and there was a general scramble in the direction of the desk at the far end of the room. There was fierce competition for any job that offered, and after my spruce appearance had nearly caused a riot on my first visit I found it prudent to remove my collar and tie before entering, hiding them in my pocket until I left. After a time I became accustomed to idling and sitting with my chin in my hand; also I gradually lost a tendency to keep one hand continually on my pocketbook!

At last my chance came. A steward, with scratches on his face and in a somewhat battered condition generally, arrived in search of a helper.

"He's been here before," said the man beside me, apparently unmoved. "The boat's too small.

But I went forward, and, owing to lack of enthusiasm on the part of others, was selected for the job, whereupon I paid a probationary fee to join the union.

The next morning I was introduced to my new position as first cabin messman aboard the X— The ship was decked alongside a coal pier, loading a cargo for Dunkirk, France.

I was given the uniform of my office—a white jacket several sizes too large for me. Breakfast was served to the officers, and from that meal onwards I bore the name of "Messman," or in its abbreviated form, simply "Mess." And in my big loose jacket I felt like one!

"I'm glad you've come mate," remarked the departing messman. "I never wanted to sail. The steward's no good. Why, he don't even know what 'servittes' is! He thinks they're towels!" His contempt for his superior was withering.

"Did you see those scratches on his face?" he continued gleefully. "I did them! I gave him a black eye, too, only it's almost gone now. The captain's fine and the mate ain't bad. I'll give you your bearings, and I don't doubt but that you'll have a fine voyage."

According to American law the conditions of service must be read over to seamen, and as the shipping commissioner mumbled something hurriedly when I went to his office I suppose this is what he must have been doing.

"Now you're signed on," he said, impressively, after I had affixed my signature to a document.

Returning to the steamer, I began work in earnest—a never-ending routine of serving meals, washing dishes, cleaning the officers' rooms and polishing brasswork.

The steward took charge of the captain's room, as the discharged messman, I learnt had at odd moments gone through the captain's desk and even attempted to pick the lock of the safe. I felt a little slighted at not being considered trustworthy enough to tidy the skipper's room, but I soon discovered that with the steward helping much time was saved.

Late next afternoon our cargo was all on board. For several days walking on the decks had (Continued on page 3)

British Columbia's whaling industry produces about 400 tons of whale bone meal and 800 tons of meat and blood for fertilizing purposes annually. This is exported mostly to the United States.

According to G. F. Tomsett, superintendent of the Saskatchewan Branch of the Employment Service of Canada, about 43,000 harvest hands were brought into Saskatchewan and distributed over the province to harvest and thresh the 1925 crop.

J. Stapleton, of Regina, ordered two springer spaniel puppies from a dog agent in Liverpool on October 9th. Thirty days later they were delivered to him after a voyage and journey totaling 4,500 miles, the shipment going at the rate of 150 miles a day. This constitutes a record for speed.

Constituting a record for Canada and probably for the world, 5,447,624 bushels of all grains were marketed on the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Western Canada on November 19. The nearest approach to this figure was the 3,406,000 bushels marketed on October 18, 1915, in the year of one of the greatest crops the Dominion has ever harvested.

Reports received at Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters this week show that four road accidents occurred in cases where motorists drove their cars into trains along in the process of crossing levels. This brings the total of accidents of this kind up to thirty for the year. In all four cases the automobiles were damaged and the motorists escaped with minor injuries.

Eighty-seven black foxes, valued at about $100,000, shipped in 44 crates, arrived at Montreal last week from Buffalo. Twenty-five of the animals were prize-winners at the Black Fox Exhibition which concluded last week, and were on consignment to the Borestone Mountain Fox Ranch at Onawa, Maine.

The Far East has heard about Canadian apples. The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia carried 8,000 boxes of apples when clearing out of Vancouver last week. General trade conditions between Canada and the Far East are quite healthy as there was also on board the vessel 800 tons of Canadian flour, 100 automobiles and 160 tons of Alberta beef.

With each succeeding year Great Britain is relying more upon British colonies for agricultural supplies. In the seven months of 1925 ending July, Canada supplied Great Britain with 4,927,266 pounds of butter, compared with 154,224 pounds for the same period of 1924, and 40,458,544 pounds of cheese, compared to 20,153,504 pounds for the same period of last year.

Two bears, six coyotes and fifteen chipmunks were shipped to England on the Canadian Pacific liner Montclair last week from the Toronto Zoo to the London Zoo. In exchange, the Curator of these gardens has been asked to supply Toronto with Capercaillie, Bean, Magellan and bar-headed geese, shell ducks, a female tom duck, two rheas (ostriches), four Jays; two young Leopards, and a Barbary Sheep. A stiff order.

Six champion juvenile swine breeders, winners in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have been awarded medals and trophies by the Canadian Pacific Railway and are now the guests of the latter at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto. The young people, who competed in clubs on Canadian Pacific lines in the West are: Vern Johnson and Oscar Gudgason, Alberta; Lorne Joynt and Fred Argue, Rouleau, Saskatchewan; Marnie Cormack and Grace Ewen, Kenton, Manitoba.

MY NOVEL HOLIDAY

By Mercer Sherwood Maloney

The author was an American college, and greatly wished to visit Europe. Having no money he could not travel in the ordinary way, and so decided to work his passage. To this end he secured a billet as "messman" aboard a cargo-steamer, and here describes his amusing experiences as an amateur steward. He didn't see a great deal of Europe, but he learnt a lot about the lives and characters of "those who go down to the sea in ships."

Like every American college man, I wanted to make a trip to Europe; I had been eager to go ever since I first began to read history, which made me long to see the sights of the Old World. But—like hosts of other college men—I had no money, and so, when the vacation came along, I sat down to think out a plan of campaign. Finally I decided that I would work my way in some capacity or other. I was advised to try for a job as a steward on board a ship, and forthwith started on my quest.

In the sordid surroundings of the headquarters of the Cooks' known as Union Hall, I hung around for three days in company with sundry Spaniards and Filipinos, who seem to be particular-

CHAUVIN ALBERTA

The Start of an Overseas Empire.

CONSIDERING Canada's progress during the past forty years there is no room for pessimism. And if Canadians face their problems squarely and attack them with courage it would be difficult to foresee the limits to Canada's future prosperity," said E. W. Beatty, K.C., President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, on November 7th, last, on the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Beatty made known to the world his belief that the present problems were no more difficult than those of forty years ago and Canadians not less able to cope with them.

Forty years ago Canada had a population of 5,000,000 as compared to 8,500,000 at present. It is a remarkable fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company spent $70,000,000 of their own money in bringing settlers to the Dominion. And just as the building of Canada was a gallant fight against great forces so did the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway constitute a historic battle against overwhelming odds. The men who led in its creation faced ruin often.

Today, as a result of the courage, the far-sightedness and the optimism of the builders of the Canadian Pacific, the reliability of the Company has come to be an accepted fact the world over and has been recognized abroad as the tangible evidence of Canada's position as a nation.

Just forty years ago, November 7, 1885, Mr. Beatty recalled, the rails met at Craigellachie in the Eagle Pass, B. C., when a tense group of men watched Donald A. Smith, later Lord Strathcona, drive the last spike home. Others in the group picture above include Sir William Van Horne, Sir Sandford Fleming, Major Rogers, finder of Rogers Pass, George R. Harris and James Ross.

been a difficult task, but gradually things were tidied up. The tugs pulled us out and we were anchored in the river while the shipping company had an argument with the coal company as to who was to pay certain demurrage charges. The dispute was protracted, and we lay there for two weeks, watching the ferries pass with crowds bound for the seashore. This was, indeed, an inauspicious start for my European tour!

The officers, I discovered, had all served on deck or in the engine room before receiving their certificates, and as our ship was small, there existed a fellowship among the officers and men which could not have been found on larger vessels. Stories of other companies were usually told over the table, and to hear an interesting yarn completed I often found a pretext to remain in the saloon. Throughout the meals I assumed a butler-like dignity which was, I fear, rather foreign to my nature.

The steward gave me assistance with the first meals I served, called the officers by their ratings. "Will you have coffee now, chief?" he would say to the chief engineer. I believed that it would be more respectful if I learned each man's name, with "Mister" as a prefix. No one was called by name, however, until one morning, when the wireless operator was late for breakfast, the steward inquired: "Porridge or corn flakes this morning, Sparks?" At last, I thought, I had learnt a name!

"Mr. Sparks," I said, the next morning, "will you have grapefruit?"

Instantly there was a stir of interest, and when I returned from the pantry with the grapefruit I caught the words: "Well, you are full of sparks, aren't you?"

I felt myself to be getting along admirably; I tried to make up for any lack of experience by attentiveness and a desire to do good work.

After a time a new third engineer came aboard and was given the vacant place at table. The saloon was small, and in order to

I had just enough room to pass between the backs of the seated men and the sideboard. At luncheon that day it seemed as though the soup was hotter than usual. I served the riping hot plates two at a time from the pantry, and to relieve the agony of a burning thumb I tilted one of them. The soup shot forward, and at the same instant the new "third" put his hand to his back and leaned to his feet with a yell of anguish.

"I've always heard they did that in road restaurants!" remarked the second engineer, and a roar of laughter broke forth.

Lumber industries of British Columbia are sending spruce to Boston and New York, fir to Florida and Cuba, new markets created within the last few months. Demands from regular fir markets in Great Britain, Asia, Australia and South Africa are reported better than normal.

The demand for Canadian flour is increasing rapidly in the Orient. This year 347,760 barrels of flour were exported from Medicine Hat mostly for the East. Great Britain is Canada's best customer for wheat flour, having taken 130,000 barrels of the total of 684,698 barrels exported during the month of August.

The Canadian Pacific Rockies are not "shot up" yet. Following a 30-day hunting trip, Mr. and Mrs. Kollock, of Los Angeles, told of deer that walked right up to camp; bears that prowled all around in numbers; rams and mountain sheep in abundance; lakes full of trout caught with every throw of the line.

Despite alleged trade depression and "blue ruin" talk, during the week ending October 31, 1925, 67 new companies were formed with authorized capital of $151,656,000, as compared with 90 companies with $112,614,875 capital the previous week and with 37 companies with $7,588,000 capital, the corresponding week of last year.

During the 96 hours from Monday, November 9, to Thursday, November 12, the Canadian Pacific Railway loaded a car of grain every 56 seconds, the total being 6,150 cars. On Wednesday 1,806 cars were loaded and on Thursday 1,818, while the record for the year and for many years past was reached on Friday, November 13, when 1,994 cars were loaded.

Involving the use of 3 1/4 million tons of crushed rock, or about 70,000 carloads, approximately 1,000 miles along the Canadian Pacific Railway, Eastern Lines, have been ballasted with rock to date. Rock ballast is dustless and there is a very great increase in comfort for the passenger. Rock-ballasting also increases the strength of the track and otherwise improves its physical condition as to drainage and other matters.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has announced the offer of three free scholarships to apprentices and other employees enrolled on the permanent staff of the company and under 21 years of age, and to minor sons of employees. The scholarships cover four years tuition in architecture, chemical, civil, mechanical or electrical engineering at McGill University and are subject to competitive examination.

Taking steps in the United States toward a greater recognition of clean sportsmanship and the need of conservation of fish, game and forest resources, Ozark Ripley, of Tennessee, editor of Field and Stream, Outdoor Life, Outing, announced at Montreal recently that catching game fish with worms had been banned in practically all states of the republic. Worm fishing is considered destructive as small fish returned to the water are too badly wounded to live.

Sugar beet production in Canada is increasing on a phenomenal scale while the value of refined beet sugar has increased about 100 per cent. in 1924. In 1924, 31,111 acres were planted to sugar beets yielding 295,177 tons of beets, from which 85,770,709 pounds of sugar was refined with a value of $6,192,645. In 1923 there was a yield of 159,200 tons of beets from 37,941 acres. The value of the 39,429,160 pounds of sugar refined was $3,745,200.

MANITOU LAKE LADIES AID

Last Friday evening found the ladies all ready for their Annual Sale of Work. Fears were entertained at one time that the change in the weather would affect the attendance, but this was not so and Brady School was crowded by those who wished to show their appreciation of the work of the Aid, and have a good time as well. Two fishponds (one for adults, and one for the youngsters) did a roaring business, and the "surprises" were mostly of the useful variety. The Mathieson boys furnished the music, and with Mr. Geo. Masson as floor manager everything went off swimmingly. The two quilts were secured by Miss Thorpe and Mr. John Hilker. During the interval Mr. James V. Coe announced the candidature of Mr. G. A. Lawson for the forthcoming election and asked for the undivided support of all electors. Dancing was resumed and towards the conclusion it was announced (through Mr. K. W. Coe) that the amount raised was $145.75 and the expenses were $10.00, leaving a net balance of $135.00 which amount would be spent, as formerly, in the relief of needy, and sick relief. Great credit is due to all those who by their voluntary labour made this success possible. The Manitou Lake Ladies Aid desire to tender their sincere thanks to all who in any way contributed towards their Sale of Work.

U. G. G. MEETING

A meeting of the shareholders of the U. G. G. Elevator will be held on Tuesday December 8th at 2.30 in the U.G.G. office.

The delegate to the U.G.G. convention will give his report particularly in regard to the U.G.G. and the pool.

MY NOVEL HOLIDAY

My hasty apologies accepted. Although with a somewhat bad grace, I retreated to the pantry, where my mirth erupted. It was my first mishap; I vowed it would be my last.

Next morning we were at sea. The sunlight shone through the port-hole and awoke me early, so that I had no trouble in serving coffee to the mate on the bridge at six o'clock precisely. Thereafter we passed into the usual sea routine that every sailor knows. The second officer put the clock back twenty minutes daily, and my duties multiplied until the spare time which I had used for resting no longer existed.

Our two cooks were Spanish, and well merited their name of "grub-spoilers." The second cook was a grandfatherly old man. As baker, he did not knead the bread efficiently, and in consequence his loaves were often quite inedible. His great speciality was tapioca pudding, and he gave us tapioca pudding until the menu seemed to need variation—and then he gave us tapioca pudding with raisins! Finally the captain complained, and the steward produced canned fruit. One morning, when the cook had excelled himself in the making of baked-cake, there were demands from the officers for more. Unfortunately, however, in an altercation with the chef, the second cook had become temperamental and thrown the rest of the cakes overboard!

When it came to throwing things overboard he might well have taken lessons from me. I used to clean dishes on the principle of inertia; I took them to the side, gave a jerk, and the contents of the plate or dish were supposed to fly overboard. I had to stop that practice, however; too many of the dishes were slippery and followed their contents into the sea.

So far the others had treated me like a servant and kept me at a distance. After a time I became anxious to see if my position could be made easier.

"Kindly Use Ash Trays" was a sign which greeted the officers (came to the saloon for refreshment or to sit and smoke, I had printed the notice on an envelope addressed to me while at college. From that envelope, I thought the curious might learn something!

Next morning my spirits sank for I had to clean up cigarette ends and ashes from the deck as usual. But I did notice a certain difference of attitude towards me—save from the captain, who was always the same. Thereafter I was occasionally called upon to give my views on current events and the third officer included me in his endless arguments concerning the evils of Bolshevism.

That afternoon I went into the engine-room to talk to the second engineer, who was on duty. We sat under a ventilator, which kept us as cool as if we had been on deck. I had learned that work was easier and advancement more rapid in the engine-room, and I had an idea that if I went to sea again it might be as an engineer. "How long did you study French in college?" asked the second.

"How did you know that I had been to college?" I said feigning

Handsome Cup for C. P. Liner Making World Cruise

1. Cup being placed in niche in library of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France. 2. Cup being presented, left to right, C. S. Quartermaster, (passenger) Staff Captain W. G. Buck Wood, Mrs. Mather Cope, (passenger) Capt. E. Griffiths, R.N.R. (Commander). 3. This photo shows the Cup presented to the ship and the Replica given to Commander Griffiths.

At Southampton, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France was presented with a silver cup 27 inches high weighing 137 ounces on Friday, October 30 by C.S. Quartermaster on behalf of the Round the World Cruising Party on this ship during the winter 1924-25. The cup is a copy of the Gold Extente Cordiale Cup presented to France by His Majesty King Edward VII and was given as a token of their appreciation for the splendid time the passengers enjoyed on their long cruise. The Cup, with suitable inscription, was placed in a niche in the library of the ship and a replica of it was presented to the Commander of the ship, E. Griffiths, R.N.R.

This memento has a specially high value in the eyes of the officers of the ship as it represents the satisfaction of passengers who had made a three months voyage of 34,000 miles under their care. The inscriptions speak for themselves. On the cup is engraved: Presented to the Canadian Pacific R.M.S. "Empress of France" by passengers on the 1925 Cruise in appreciation of a remarkably successful voyage of 34,000 miles. Commander E. Griffiths, R.N.R.

Inspection on the Replica presented to the Commander reads as follows: This Replica presented to Commander E. Griffiths, R.N.R., R.M.S. "Empress of France" by passengers on the 1925 Cruise in appreciation of his skill, tact and unfailing courtesy throughout a most wonderfully successful voyage of 34,000 miles.

With even greater comforts on board the palatial ocean liners than any to be had on shore it is not surprising that cruising has seized the popular fancy. This year many will avail themselves of the opportunity of making the Round the World Cruise on the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Scotland.

The liner leaves New York on December 3 and returns April 10 via the Panama Canal after visiting over 20 countries en route, including 26 ports of call, and arriving in the Holyland on Christmas Day. Cruise members proceed to Jerusalem and Bethlehem by train after disembarking at Haifa. After a day and half visiting scenes made memorable by the life of Our Saviour the party goes on to Cairo by train.

surprise. "When I came aboard I made it a point to tell no one." "Oh, I can always tell a college man when I see one," he answered, with the air of a Sherlock Holmes.

Next morning at four o'clock we were nearing the looks at Dunkirk, and arrived just in time to see the locks closed till next flood tide.

Half an hour after we tied up, there were a hundred or more people aboard. Labourers in baggy trousers, with handkerchiefs about their necks, filled the decks and started to remove the hatch-covers. Merchants anxious to sell gaudy handkerchiefs to the crew brought their wares in bundles slung over their shoulders. Numerous urethins brought sacks to be filled with odds and ends of coal they might pick up, and ran hither and thither begging for food. And then there was the Laundry woman. For over an hour we had sorted soiled linen, counting and recounting until the tally was correct. Then the good woman lost her self-assurance and waived that she could not possibly do all the quantity in three days.

The unloading of the coal began at breakfast time, and the work progressed far too rapidly to suit a crew who would gladly have remained in port a month or so.

"I remember a trip to Spain once," said the first engineer, thoughtfully, "when we were in port for three months. It took on month to settle a strike and two months to get masts and repair a damaged engine. We're going to stay here a week; I need that much time on the engine." The captain always glared ferociously whenever he was asked how long we were going to stay: "Four days," he snapped, "they are going to get us out as soon as they can."

My afternoon was free, the steward having forgotten to give me extra work, such as painting floors, which cannot be done at sea and so I sallied forth to view the town.

"You're lucky, Mess," commented the first engineer, as I went down the ladder. "When went to sea, the messman had to polish brass in the engine room when he was finished above deck."

Finally our last day in port drew near; the Consul had made good his promise to send us to sea again as soon as possible. We were not going to another European port as I had hoped, but back to the States. I didn't care to desert, and so I decided to return with the ship. It hadn't been such a European tour, certainly, but I had had a pleasant and cheap holiday.

"We're ready for home," said several of the crew—a confession that their pay had been spent. A few minutes of gossip, snuggled aboard in spite of regulations. The cooks were drunk for the second time since pay-day; and as the steward had apparently disappeared, they hailed me with favour as their new chief. I continued my work unhindered by authority, hoping for my usual two hours ashore when I had finished. Supplies arrived, however, and I was the only person available to take charge of them. Preparations were made to leave at six o'clock with the flood-tide, and with a seaman and the steward missing the third officer went shore to inquire at the various cafes, but returned without information. At a quarter to six just as the sailors were casting off, the missing men returned. Once we were at sea again the steward discovered that the cooks had taken a quantity of stores and exchanged them for drinks at the Dunkirk cafes. No wonder they had been sorry to see him come aboard at the last moment!

On the part of the crew there were murmurs of disgust when it was found that their concealed bottles of cognac had been discovered by miscreants unknown and duly emptied. Even the first engineer, who had bought a stock and hidden it in a part of the mechanical equipment known as the "vaporizer," came to the conclusion that vaporizers function true to name.

Nineteen days later we arrived in New York harbour, the voyage being entirely without incident. Next day was pay-day, and then, as our engines were to undergo repairs we were put into dock, and there followed for me a few weeks of leisure, with no meals to serve, though I worked hard painting floors and polishing brass-work. As I was constantly on my feet, I felt it a well-earned rest when I could sit down and I got into the habit of going into the captain's room to repose in his wicker chair, the most comfortable in the ship. Once, however, I stayed too long, and he caught me! That week the ship was ordered to her loading dock, and the "old man" made it known through the steward that he thought it would be better of they had a "competent man-man" aboard. Thereupon I took my leave, returning to college just a week after the opening. I had not carried out my scheme of doing the Grand Tour of Europe but I had certainly been through some novel experiences. Moreover, I had no consciousness of failure. I had done my best, and I could not agree with the captain that I had made a mess of being a messman!

THE NEWS WE WANT

One of our correspondent wants to know the kind of news we want. We print a list of subjects below which will be of much assistance in writing news to the paper. It would be a good idea cut it out and keep it in mind. Births, deaths, accidents, robberies, marriages, land sales, school news, church news, conflagrations, visiting abroad, public meetings, family reunions, society meetings, real estate sales, condition of crops, visitors from abroad, anything of general interest, something good about people. Remember when sending in news for publication, we want to know the following: Who? What? When? Where? How? Also remember that the contributor must sign his name to all items sent in so we can tell who it is from. No attention will be paid to unsigned letters, several of which hit our waste paper basket every once in a while.

Special care should be taken in the spelling of names, and in the writing of words such as "Miss" "Mrs." and "Mr." so as not to get them confused.

We want a correspondent in every locality in the district to send us the items of interest to their neighbourhood. It helps to boost your neighbourhood and let others know that you are a live wire and it helps us to give you a better newspaper representation of the whole district. So let us pull together. Send us your items under the d of your locality and we will gladly publish them.
